

Allie Jo Shipman is the Senior Director, Policy & Professional Affairs for the National Alliance of State Pharmacy Associations (NASPA). In this role, she assists state pharmacy associations and NASPA associate members in understanding state policy trends and innovations through state policy research and resource development. Prior to joining NASPA, Allie Jo served as the Associate Director of State Government Affairs for the National Community Pharmacists Association. In this position, she supported NCPA's state partners and members through research, resource development, and advocacy for state-level legislative and regulatory priorities affecting community pharmacy practice, including compounding regulation. Allie Jo earned her Doctorate of Pharmacy and Master of Business Administration from Mercer University in Atlanta, Georgia. A native of South Carolina, she currently resides in Alexandria, Virginia.