The International Pharmaceutical Federation (FIP)
& the Turkish Pharmacists' Association
proudly present:

FIP – TPA Regional Conference for the European Region
Ankara, Turkey, 23 – 25 October 2019
Preliminary Programme

Delivering primary health care: Pharmacists taking the next leap forward

Building on its successful Regional Conference for the Eastern Mediterranean Region in April, the International Pharmaceutical Federation (FIP) is continuing to implement the World Health Organization Declaration of Astana on primary health care, with the ultimate goal of achieving universal health coverage.
In October, we will be taking this agenda into the European Region.

FIP and the Turkish Pharmacists' Association will gather key pharmacy stakeholders, leaders and partners from Europe and beyond in Ankara, Turkey — where pharmacy began with Galen and Dioscorides centuries ago. Together we will embark on the journey towards healthier populations through stronger primary health care with advanced pharmaceutical services, leaving no one behind.

In the land of our profession's forefathers, together we will take the next leap forward by building on our strong foundations, guided by new scientific developments. We will share our experiences in order to optimise future pharmacy and position pharmacists as one of the most effective providers of primary health care.

The conference, "Delivering primary health care: Pharmacists taking the next leap forward", will be held from 23 to 25 October 2019. Join us and be part of leading and co-creating the transformation of pharmacy.

Unleash pharmacists' potential to meet non-communicable disease targets in Europe

Session description
NCDs pose one of the greatest healthcare risks for humanity, demanding new answers and requiring innovative and creative solutions from health systems and healthcare professionals. Building on the key roles pharmacists already play as primary healthcare professionals in the community, pharmacists can provide focused interventions, specialised counselling and care coordination, improving patient engagement to achieve better outcomes in the global fight against NCDs. The session will also be a platform for the national launch of TPA's My Guide Pharmacy Programme on beating NCDs. Opportunities for multi-stakeholder collaboration and expansion of the programme will be explored during the session

Optimising primary health care provision with integrated digital health technologies

Session description
From technologies that allow people to manage their health more effectively, to better ways of diagnosing disease, to monitoring the impact of policies on population health, digital technologies for health, or digital health, are having a profound effect on how health services are delivered and how health systems are run. The impressive trend in national policies for digital health reflects the firm commitment to use digital technologies to advance the Sustainable Development Goals, support universal health coverage and shape the future of primary health care. This session will highlight the opportunities, challenges and needs for pharmacists created by digital health technologies in achieving the vision for primary health care.

Human resources for health: Workforce mapping and transformation

Target audience: Pharmacy education and academic pharmacy, Social and Administrative Pharmacy, Policy and regulation

Session description
There is no health care without a pharmacy workforce. As medicines experts, the pharmacy workforce plays a key role in improving health outcomes through responsible use of medicines and optimising effective choice and use.
The continued development of pharmacy services and the pharmaceutical sciences relies on a well-educated, competent, sufficient and well distributed pharmaceutical workforce.
Transforming the global pharmaceutical workforce requires a global vision with clear and consensus-based objectives consistent with global health strategies. The session will share FIP workforce development tools and frameworks for countries, showcase the results of the FIP Workforce Transformation Programme, and share country experiences from the region.

Learning objectives
At the end of this session, participants will be able to:
1. Understand the importance of investing in pharmacy workforce development & transformation.
2. Outline the FIP workforce development tools, frameworks and programmes.
3. Describe how the FIP Workforce Transformation Programme can support nations to develop their workforce.
4. Identify shared challenges and opportunities across the region.

Human resources for health: Education & training to meet envisioned pharmaceutical competencies

EAFP EUROPEAN ASSOCIATION OF FACULTIES OF PHARMACY

Supported by European Association of Faculties of Pharmacy (EAFP)

Target audience: Pharmacy education and academic pharmacy, Social and Administrative Pharmacy, Policy and regulation

Session description
Increased importance of a strong primary health care represents an excellent opportunity for pharmacists to take the next leap forward for the profession. The next leap forward requires current and future workforce to receive a needs-based initial and continuous education. This session will explore how educators and trainers can ensure delivery of contemporary education and training from the primary health care perspective and how educators and trainers can demonstrate essential competencies alongside the fast-changing health care needs.

Learning objectives
At the end of this session, participants will be able to:
1. Explore the needs-based education concept and framework.
2. Identify the gaps between education and practice for strong primary health care provision.
3. Outline strategies to develop necessary competencies for educators and trainers.
4. Be introduced to country case examples on the delivery of needs-based education.

Access to medicines: Addressing medicines shortages

Supported by European Association of Hospital Pharmacists (EAHP)

Target audience: Hospital pharmacy, Health and Medicines Information, Industrial Pharmacy, Military and Emergency Pharmacy, Pharmaceutical Sciences, Policy and regulation, Social and Administrative Pharmacy, Ethics

Session description

According to the World Health Organization (WHO), access to safe, effective and quality medicines and vaccines for all is vital for the health and wellbeing of the population. WHO supports governments in promoting stronger infrastructure allowing improved access to medicines and vaccines?
How can pharmacists be part of the solution for better patient care?

Access is a global concern in view of the persisting problems of shortages of medicines. Without timely access, yet more pressure will be placed on hospitals through patients having emergencies due to a lack of medication. Since 2006, health professionals in the EU have noticed a significant increase in the number of shortages. It remains a concern for all actors of the pharmaceutical chain, from manufacturers to wholesalers, community pharmacists and hospitals.

Learning objectives

At the end of this session, participants will be able to:

1. Outline the strategies focused on improving access to essential medicines.
2. Identify the gaps and barriers to access to medicines.
3. Identify how to improve access through national and international policies.
4. Define the importance of pharmacists' involvement in various strategies improving access to medicines.

Access to medicines: Healthcare systems' sustainability

Supported by European Federation of Pharmaceutical Industries and Associations (EFPIA)

Target audience: Community pharmacy, Hospital pharmacy, Industrial pharmacy, Social and Administrative Pharmacy, Policy and regulation

Session description

WHO estimates that more than half of all medicines worldwide are prescribed, dispensed or sold inappropriately, and that half of all patients fail to take medicines correctly. Overuse, underuse and misuse result in wastage of scarce resources, continued health problems or adverse reactions to drugs. Pharmacists have significant roles in improving patients' access to medicines and ensuring healthcare systems sustainability through rational use of medicines and keeping medicines fairly affordable. In this session key organisations from Europe will present their policy principles and discuss key barriers and enablers for pharmacists in healthcare systems' sustainability.

Learning objectives

At the end of this session, participants will be able to:

1. Identify the key barriers for patient access to medicines in Europe.
2. Identify new ways for pharmacists to improve healthcare systems' sustainability.
3. Describe how different stakeholders could more effectively collaborate and contribute to faster and wider access to medicines for patients.

The prevention agenda: The imperative of expanding vaccination coverage

Target audience: Community pharmacy, Hospital pharmacy, Industrial pharmacy, Social and Administrative Pharmacy, Policy and regulation, Health and Medicines information

Session description

While the effectiveness of vaccinations is well documented, barriers to immunisation exist and have a significant impact on vaccination rates and the incidence and prevalence of vaccine-preventable diseases. Pharmacists play an essential public health role in overcoming these barriers through education, providing evidence-based information and advice to overcome misbeliefs and misconceptions regarding vaccinations, and participating in national and global routine immunisation strategies and practices and/or delivering pharmacy-based vaccinations. This session will showcase different county experiences in relation to implementing pharmacy

Learning objectives

At the end of this session, participants will be able to:

1. Explore key principles of conducting a successful public campaign to support vaccination by pharmacists and drive advocacy.
2. Develop a situation analysis at national level to build the case for vaccination by pharmacies/pharmacists.
3. Learn about the production of evidence at local level or pilot studies to advocate for implementing vaccination by pharmacies/pharmacists.

The prevention agenda: Empowering communities and promoting healthy lifestyles

Target audience: Community pharmacy, Hospital pharmacy, Industrial pharmacy, Social and Administrative Pharmacy, Policy and regulation, Health and Medicines information, Ethics, Military and emergency pharmacy, Pharmacy education and Academic pharmacy

Session description
In the Joint FIP/WHO guidelines on good pharmacy practice, one of the four key roles of pharmacists focused on health promotion is to ''contribute to improve effectiveness of the health-care system and public health". Under this role, pharmacists have a direct responsibility and accountability for engaging in preventive care activities and services that promote public health and prevent disease, i.e. in areas such as smoking cessation, infectious and sexually transmitted diseases. They should also provide point-of-care testing, where applicable, and other health screening activities for patients at higher risk of disease. Empowering people to increase control over their health needs to go hand in hand with providing adequate support to them in terms of access to quality information and expertise on specific matters. Nowadays there is much information accessible from different sources but their validity or comprehensibility is questionable. Health care professionals are the most reliable and trusted source of information and among them, pharmacists are often ranked the most trusted. This session will showcase effective interventions by pharmacists to help communities make healthier decisions, adopt healthy habits, avoid risks and quit harmful products. The adequate remuneration of healthcare professionals to ensure these preventive measures saves costs to the healthcare system.

Learning objectives
At the end of this session, participants will be able to:
1. Outline the strategies focused on empowering communities and promoting well-being.
2. Identify options to engage in preventive care activities and services that promote public health and prevent disease in the European Region.
3. Discuss how to seek remuneration for promoting healthy lifestyles through dialogue at national and international level.

Remuneration of pharmaceutical services in primary health care

Supported by Pharmaceutical Group of the European Union (PGEU)

Session description
Pharmacists can play an important role in primary health care, namely in disease prevention through the modification of risk factors. This requires pharmacists' time and expertise, and it clearly generates savings for health care payers and patients. Remunerating such qualified services seems to be a sound investment by health systems, and yet it is a major challenge in many countries. How can we address this paradigm shift in funding primary health care?

Learning objectives
At the end of this session, participants will be able to:

1. Become familiar with alternative funding models for primary health care in general, and for pharmacists' services in particular.
2. Understand how to build the case when advocating for remuneration for pharmacists' services.
3.. Understanding the barriers and challenges for service remuneration.
4. Understanding the importance of generating and using evidence to support a change in remuneration models.

HEALTH HACKATON

for pharmacy students and young professionals

Will you accept the challenge to take on innovation in healthcare at FIP Regional Conference for the European Region?

At the conference, "Delivering primary health care: Pharmacists taking the next leap forward" FIP YPG, IPSF and TPAYC, supported by Pharmapod, will co-organize the Health Hackathon for students and young professionals — an exciting opportunity to be at the forefront of digital health and innovation!

The registration for the conference is now open, with a special rate for students!

Co-organized by FIP Young Pharmacists Group, International Pharmaceutical Students Federation (IPSF) and TPA Youth Commission, supported by Pharmapod

A hackathon is an event where computer programmers get together to design an innovative solution in a short amount of time, and nowadays, this concept has been applied to various sectors and in this case, health care! Don't worry if you do not feel technology savvy. As everyone with different experiences is welcomed and there will be mentors and guidance by technology experts to guide you through the session on design thinking, technology, and innovation.

At Ankara, participants who choose this session will be placed in groups to devise an innovative solution in addressing non communicable diseases in primary health care using digital health technological interventions over a short time frame and those ideas will be pitched to an expert panel and the winners will receive a special trophy by Pharmapod.
